HAWKESBURY'S LOCAL WOMAN OF THE YEAR

Hawkesbury's 2021 Woman of the Year is local inspiration Dennise Williams, a woman who works tirelessly for her community.

In 2015, whilst working full time, Dennise Williams took on the role of P&C President for Glenorie Public School.

Dennise changed the face of the Glenorie P&C Association management and helped the P&C go from being financially unstable to a position that gave them choices in what they could do to support the school students and teachers. She developed positive relationships with many local businesses whose support has allowed the P&C to provide many additional resources to aid in maximising opportunities for the students.

These resources include over 100 laptops for the school, new laptops for all teachers, playground equipment, an artificial soccer field, a gymnastic program, new furniture for the library and much more. Her ability to motivate others to get involved and be passionate about the Glenorie Public School and community is infectious.

Lyn Pearce, Principal of Glenorie Public School, said that the children and staff of the school can never thank Dennise enough for ensuring that the school is the focal point of their community. "From the time she took on the P&C President role, I was impressed with the quality of her work for the school, her compassion for others, her ability to empower others and her love of giving." Ms Pearce said.

Robyn Preston MP, Member for Hawkesbury, is proud to have such a remarkable woman representing the Hawkesbury district. "Dennise is a worthy recipient of this award. She is an inspiration for women in Hawkesbury who are passionate about their community.
